Waves of Innovation Hit Berkeley

May 5 | Academic Innovation Studio | Dwinelle 117

Teaching innovation will be in the spotlight for the campus community this May. Come learn about colleagues' work that has accomplished goals in student engagement strategies, large enrollment courses, student writing and more. The Center for Teaching and Learning (CTL) and Educational Technology Services (ETS) invite the campus community to stop by during this 3-hour showcase.

Are Your Students Paying Attention?

The fact is you don't have (much of) their attention. Observational and student self-report studies suggest that during lectures, college students are paying attention 40–65% of the time. Ever feel like you are always having to repeat yourself? If paying attention is so difficult, and retrieval of information even harder, what's to be done?

TeleBears and Bear Facts are Going Way

Berkeley's new Student Information Systems' (SIS) implementation is well underway and students are beginning to use CalCentral as their new front-end portal for accessing all of their information on admissions, enrollment, financials, records, and more -- all in one place. Review the SIS update on class rosters, grading, and more information specifically for faculty.

Around Campus

Teaching in Summer Workshop

May 3 | 10am–1pm (lunch provided) | 442 Stephens Hall

Co-facilitated by Justin Gomer, American Studies & John Stehlin, Geography
The American Cultures Center welcomes you to a discussion of some of the best approaches to teaching during the summer at UC Berkeley. Among the topics we will discuss are: strategies for managing extended summer class time, what to expect from summer student enrollment, the specifics of the AC requirement, and teaching to issues of racial and economic justice in diverse classrooms. If you require accommodations please contact the AC Center.
